QUAY'S EYES OPENED

To the Fact That He Must Hustle to Retain His Political Grip.

HAS NO USE FOR BARNACLES NOW.

McDowell and Lily Are Now Seated for Congressmen at Large, But

ISPECIAL TELEGRAN TO THE DISPATCH. PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27. -One of the results of Senator Quay's visit here last week, it now develops, was the practical settlement of the contests for the two nominations for Congressman at large. The Senator had sounded the Western leaders on the situation, and all hands concurred in the wisdom of having one candidate from the West and one from the East. The first will be Major McDowell, one of the Senater's old-time autagonists, and the last will be General William Lily, of Mauch Chunk, Carbon county. This last name is the rock on which the Philadelphia politicians may split with the Senator.

From the general drift, as brought out at several conferences, there is no fight on the | Allen Butler. Western end of the question. There is, however, a very decided difference of opinion on the Eastern section of the line. There are three distinct and full-fledged candidates in the field already. These are General Lily, who is a wealty coal operator in Carbon; George A. Castor, a Philadelphia business man, and Austin L. Taggart, popularly known as "Farmer Taggart," of Montcomery County. None of them, to use the now popular Western expression, are in the contest "for their health." Each one has strong backing of a peculiar character.

A Friend of the Party in Need, General Lily is a veteran Republican much after the same character as Uncle John Cessna, of Bedford. For years-indeed, farther back than the memory of some of the politicians of the present can lookhe has been a heavy contributor to the Re-publican campaign fund. This financial aid has been rendered at a time when it was most needed, and in politics, as in other things, "a friend in need is a friend in-deed."

It is said that when Senator Quay was in New York running the national campaign of 1888 he conceived the idea of calling on a number of Pennsylvanians for help. It was near the close of the fight and the ex-citement was at fever heat. The Senstor selected the names of 30 men who were con-ceded to be at least semi-millionaires. Twenty of this number responded to the appeal, and it is said the check with the largest number of numerals on it was sent by General Lily. It is contended now that when a man of this kind asks for anything he should get it.

"If the nomination for Congressman at large was tendered me," said the General, as he sat in the corridor of the Continental last night and slowly stroked his beard, "I might accept it. Of course, if such an honor comes I would like it with some degree of unanimity. I would not care to go into an unseemly scramble."

General Lily's Strong Backing. It is believe that General Lily has the backing of such party men as Lieutenant Governor Watres, Ex-State Chairman William H. Andrews. General Frank Reeder and B. Frank Gilkeson. The candidacy of Austin L. Taggart, of Upper Marion, will prove an important factor in the race for Congressman-at-Large. He has formally announced himself as a condidate for the place, and in a talk on the matter says that, having been urged by a number of grangers, and given them per-mission to use his name, he cannot now dethe only man with sufficient nerve power to stand up as a candidate against Senator J.

Donald Cameron in the last Legislature.

He will have the active support of the various farmer organizations, and it is said that Colonel R. H. Thomas, of Mechanics that Colonel R. H. Thomas, of Mechanics and hard pressed, had sought refuge in the tree and there died. burg, and Leenard Rhone, of Center, may take charge of his canvass. "Farmer" Tagpart is essentially a practical man. If he was he will not be unduly elated, and if he loses he will shed no tears.

McDowell and Lily Have the Call, Several candidates for the position have been talked of in Philadelphia, but the froth has simmered away and it now looks as if George A, Castor was the choice of the Quaker City politicians. He is credited with having the backing of City Chairman Charles A. Porter and ex-Collector David Martin. Mr. Castor is not a politician, but the gentlemen who are urging his candidacy think he would be the right man in the right place. It is pretty safe to assume, however, that McDowell and Lily will be the candidates when the time comes.

A gentleman in this city who is pretty close to Senator Quay said to-day: "Sena-tor Quay has no fear of his own election as United States Senator this time, but he is beginning to realize that some of the men who claim to be his friends are greatly weakening his power in Pennsylvania polities. For this reason he has gone into the fight with something of his old-time vigor. He realizes in a very forcible manner that now is the time to 'shake off all barnacles.'" "What do you mean by that?"

Quey Looking Out for No. 1,

"Simply that Quay has had a lot of men clinging about him who seek only their own profit, comfort and self-advancement. Men come to him and say, "Senator, I am going to be a candidate for this, that and the other. Won't vou be for me?" Quar, in the good of his heart, consents, and what is the result? All of the opponents of this particular man become the opponents of Sanator Oney. Light is beginning to dawn Senator Quay. Light is beginning to dawn on the Senator's brain. He sees all this. Consequently, he has shown some care in the matter of caudidates for Congressman-at-Large. The two men who will run are Quay men now. If they run it is reasonably sure they will remain Quaymen. That's what he needs. He doesn't want men who become flushed with victory—that they themselves were in no wise responsible for and who then go off and start as political leaders on their own account.

"I have reason to know that Quay bitpresidency of the State League of It has cost Sam Warmeastle the loss of his official position, and has engen-dered an amount of bad political blood through the State that Quay may never be able to entirely wipe out. And what was it all for? Why, nothing. The presidency of a hurran organization that doesn't amount to a picavane in practical politics."

These are blunt words, but the truth does not always feel as soft as velvet or sound as

A STRANGE DISCOVERY.

Manacled Skeleton Found in a Tre-Down in Texas, GAINESVILLE, TEX., Dec. 27. - Near Tishomingo yesterday a strange discovery was made by some woodchoppers who were working in the hills west of that place. They brought to town a skeleton and the section of a tree to bear evidence of the truthfulness of their story.

They cut down a large oak tree which was partially hollow, but the entrance to the hollowed portion had almost entirely grown over, leaving only a narrow slit in the outside of the tree. When the tree fell to the ground it was split open by the shock, and there, lying in the center of the broken wood, was the skeleton of a man. On the ankle of the skeleton was a band of iron attached to a piece of chain, evidently from the manacles worn when it sought refuge in the hollow tree. From all indications the skel-eton has been entombed for years, for the ruission to use his name, he cannot now decline a nomination.

"Farmer" Taggart will be remembered as the only man with sufficient nerve power to manner as to lend to the belief that it was NAMED FOR M'KINLEY.

A White Rouse Pet That Bears the Big Man's Cognomen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 .- Ever since the death of the Scotch collie, Dash, which Mrs. Harrison brought from Indianapolis with her, there has been a dearth of pets at the White House. Now, however, the taithful old watch and house dog has been succeeded by a younger and more vigorous specimen of canine, a white and liver-spotted pointer puppy, about 6 weeks old. A friend of the President in Ohio is the donor of the dog, whose pedigree is vouched for in a long parchment roll, and he also enjoys the distinction of having been born in Ohio the day that Governor McKinley, was chosen to preside over the destinies of the Buckeye State.

From this circumstance probably the attendants at the Executive Mansion have named the puppy McKinley, and he is as thriving and energetic in search of mischief as any dog yet born. Every visitor to the White House, when "McKinley" is loose, is subjected to a searching examination, and if a young American happens to be in the party he is pretty apt to be subjected to some of "Mac's" frolicsome antics.
